

Rojas, Adilene

Per.5

02/10/26

Mr.Rizo

Editorial Cartoon

My cartoon has a few messages. The biggest and most evident message is Climate change. My next message is people who feign ignorance to politics simply because it hasn't affected them yet. Last but not least is the research institute, Heritage Foundation who created Project 2025. These people published very harmful and false information about climate change, and due to it being created by conservatives, our republican president is using this as an outline of what to do to the United States during his second term.

The first image is a tropical frog expressing worry and concern for rising temperatures in their native land. As in these past years there had been many severe droughts in the Amazon Rainforest. While the second image is the frog being cut off by an ignorant 'frog' who voluntarily feigns ignorance to politics and climate change. Under this 'frog' is another who shares similar beliefs, one who believes that politics and consequences that involve them can't be all that bad. The last image shows all three frogs in a pot that's trying to be boiled, while in the background everything is on fire. The fire has the words "Heritage Foundation". The message for this image is while the Heritage foundation is saying Climate change is a hoax made up by woke liberals. As they try to make it appear as if everything is fine, by painting a fake picture of what's 'really' going on, our Amazon rainforest has had many severe droughts, and temperatures are either dropping or rising slowly but surely in areas where it shouldn't.

For me, people aren't angry enough nor aware. The more people keep allowing for our climate to worsen, the harder it will be to recover. It's already been estimated that climate change will be irreversible from anywhere to 3 years all the way to 12 years. Future generations will have to live with the mistakes the much older generations did to this earth and have no way to fix it. Those who are voluntarily ignorant to politics and climate change being connected are also a part of the problem as they usually don't end up voting, and when they do they don't look into their politicians policies. Lastly, the Heritage foundation is a big reason why under this administration won't be able to do anything. While claiming that Project 2025 is irrelevant, he has implemented many things from the 'research' aside from the policies on climate change.